CINCINNATI (AP) — The Johnson Administration's foreign policy will be one of the main campaign issues this fall, U.S. Rep. Oliver P. Bolton says.

Bolton, running for congressman-at-large, Wednesday night described the Administration's foreign policy as a "continual encounter of the unprepared with the unforeseen."

The War On Juvenile Drinkers

City and county officials should cooperate to the greatest possible extent-and we're certain they will-in the liquor control director's campaign to get at the bottom of the juvenile drinking problem in the state of Ohio.

Liquor Department statistics for 1963 make it quite clear that here is a problem-more than one of every four citations issued by the department's enforcement officers listed offenses involving drinking juveniles.

Juvenile drinking has stirred concern before both locally and on a countywide basis and efforts have been made to combat it. There has been much progress, but more will not hurt. With the statewide study now under way, there's hope that such concerted action will bring an even broader crackdown.

Most of the burden rests on the shoulders of those who bear the licenses to dispense the alcoholic beverages. While conceding it is difficult to control bars 100 per cent to the point where no juveniles are drinking, those responsible for the bars operation could put an almost complete stop to the practice with a minimum of effort. Properly-run bars see to it that those under age don't get drinks.

But there are some loosely-operated establishments which leave the doors ajar for the youngsters and they lose no time in beating a path to them.

Because of the geographical location of East Liverpool and other Columbiana County communities, our situation relative to juvenile drinkers is complicated by the laxity of some spots in neighboring states. Hancock County in West Virginia is especially inviting and when the teen-agers can't get served on the Ohio side many sneak across the river.

While West Virginia is not involved in the Ohio campaign, there's always the remote possibility that some of the Buckeye action could rub off and stir a similar

The law enforcement agencies responsible for battling the problem are far better acquainted with the remedies than we. We hope they put their experience to the best possible use and come up with constructive suggestions which will help the state of Ohio set up a stronger and more effective program aimed at shutting off the tap for the juveniles.

A juvenile who can be made to see the light now will not become an adult drinking problem later.

Another Horse Race

Slickest timing of the 1964 political war so far was release by Sen. Goldwater's campaign strategists of their man's interview with a German weekly news mag-

When the reporter asked Sen. Goldwater If he could beat President Johnson, the answer was that he couldn't beat him now but next Nov. 3 "there is going to be another horse race." By releasing this statement on the eve of the Scranton-Lodge campaign to discredit Goldwater by starting the chant, "He can't win," the Arizona senator's managers punctured the opposition's balloon and left it holding the

The question before the Republican National Convention next week will be who has enough delegates for the nomination, not who can beat President Johnson next November. But inevitably the convention delegates will be thinking of November while horse-trading.

ALL OF THEM will remember, many grimly, how the "He can't win" chant demoralized Taft backers in the GOP convention in 1952. But they will remember, too, that the Ohioan was competing then against the most popular military figure of World War II.

There is no Gen. Eisenhower looming over the favorite in the Republican National Convention this year. There is not even a Wendell L. Willkie, or a Thoma E. Dewey. There are only men named Bill, Dick, Hank and George.

When men like these say Barry Goldwater can't win, they imply one of them could win - and no one is betting that way now.

What about next Nov. 3?

No one knows. But Barry Goldwater, who has the grace to admit he couldn't win now, is right when he says Nov. 3 is another horse race. He doesn't say he is going to win it, only that he will be running in it.

It's a long time until November nearly four months.

ANYONE rash enough to predict at this point in July how things will have turned out by Nov. 4 when all the votes have been counted would have been rash enough to bet last Nov. 21 that John F. Kennedy would be running for re-election on the Democratic ticket and surmise that Hubert Humphrey would be his running mate, instead of Lyndon B. Johnson.

Higher Education

Add the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters to the list of those who fully realize the need of higher education for our young people and who have decided to do something about it.

The Brotherhood, in annual convention at Long Beach, Calif., has set up a college scholarship program for children of members of the organization, with three $500 scholarships to be awarded annually beginning with the 1964-65 school year.

With college diplomas becoming more and more necessary each year, the money well spent and many students who otherwise might not have had the opportunity now will be able to continue their education after high school.

The IBOP can be proud of its action and place it under "Major Accomplishments" when the record of this year's convention is written.

Legislative Reapportionment

A far-reaching study by a newly appointed Ohio apportionment committee will set off some far-reaching howling by defenders of the existing apportionment in the Ohio Legislature.

Some of the howling will be done by people who say the U.S. Supreme Court had no right to upset cozy arrangements whereby hundreds of legislators in various states, including Ohio, represented nothing but geography.

Some will be done by people who object Instinctively to anything that changes existing patterns, whether the patterns can be justified or not.

Most of it will be done by ax-grinders with something to lose if the Ohio Legislature is reapportioned according to population, free from the now indefensible constitutional requirement that every one of Ohio's 88 counties must have one representative, regardless of population.

Forty-eight of Ohio's 88 counties cannot qualify for a representative under a constitutional quota system in accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling.

These counties would have to be combined into groups to justify representation. But would this be so drastic? Certainly not in Ohio, whose Senate is apportioned on a basis of 35 districts.

Only four Ohio counties, Hamilton, Cuyahoga, Lucas and Summit, are large enough to stand alone. Cuyahoga has six senators for its population, Lucas County one. But 84 counties are combined to form legislative districts, some with a single senator, some with several.

This has been done so equitably no one thinks drastic reapportionment would be needed for equal representation in the Ohio Senate. What would there be to how! about if the same pattern were carried over into the Ohio House?

By Truman Twill

There is no such thing as an undecided voter in a presidential election.

Find A Lunkhead

Polls that say such-and-such a percentage of persons questioned have not made up their minds are bosh. Either they have no minds to make up, or they quite properly think their decision is not the pollsters' business.

Every voter's mind is made up months before election day - even before the political conventions in many instances. The decision is automatic

It is made by the falling into place of everything a voter has been influenced by since he began to think. It is like a conditioned reflex. It requires no conscious deliberation. It just happens.

IF THIS is so - and it is - political arguments are futile.

They are a waste of time. They are an insult to the intelligence of the people they are supposed to influence. Actually, the only thing accomplished by the hullabaloo of a presidential campaign is to stimulate interest in voting. Political professionals know this and say so. They have no illusions about changing the minds of voters who already have reached decisions.

But they do have ideas about reaching the minds of dopey citizens who might skip the balloting unless fired up by one means or another.

The professionals admit what the rest of us won't even think about, that a national election is an all-out emotional binge that happens once every four years and should be participated in by everybody . . . whoopee! The more confusion the better the chances.

To the pros, it's show business. The idea is to fill the tent. They don't care what the spectators say as long as they show up at the polling places.

THESE THINGS being true, the dumbest thing one voting American can do to another voting American is to argue with him. There is nothing to be gained. There are no switches in faith among confirmed voters. There can be converts to the creed that every American owes it to his birthright to vote, however.

And there is an obligation to see that no American shall be denied his birthright by the bully-boy tactics of pluguglies afraid he might vote the wrong way. That's what the civil rights issue has been about for the last century. That's what it will be about for the next century.

Don't argue politics with a fellow citizen whose mind is made up. Just thank God he had a mind to make up and use your energy looking for a non-voting lunkhead you might be able to convert to your own misguided political philosophy.

Union's International Aspect Cited

Victor Riesel is touring Africa and Eastern Europe to cover the fast breaking news in those parts of the world. In his absence prominent personages in American affairs are pinch-hitting for him.

By GEORGE MEANY President, AFL-CIO

By the time this guest column is published, both Victor Riesel and I will be overseas in different areas of the world. Both of us will be traveling because of the worldwide commitments of the American labor movement.

As a reporter, Victor Riesel will be checking activities in which the AFL-CIO is engaged. I will be in conferences on international trade union problems with the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions and the International Labor Organization, one of the specialized agencies of the United Na-

Both these trips result from a little known fact about American unions. I refer to the fact that the AFL-CIO spends nearly one-fourth of its annual income in the international arena.

We recruit no new members as a result of this activity. We still never collect a cent of dues as a result of our efforts.

BUT IT SEEMS to us that this is an investment in the most real sense of the word. It is an investment in democracy, an investment in freedom. an investment in the well-being of our fellow man on continents at once miles away from the United States and only minutes away from our shores.

The interest of the American trade union movement in the international field is not new. It has been a sustained effort that goes back to the very earliest days of organized labor in this country.

It is an interest born out of the realization that there is a true brotherhood of workers: that the well-being of a nation is based on the well-being of her people; that the true wealth of any country is the health and the happiness of its citizens.

Most of the time there is nothing very dramatic about the work of the trade union movement of the United States in other lands. Our representatives spend their time and effort in the unromantic task of helping fledgling unions in such day-to-day necessities as keeping the books, teaching parliamentary procedures and providing such basic assistance as reading, writing and arithmetic.

WE SPEND our funds for mimeograph machines and typewriters, for paper and pencils - for the real weapons of a democracy at war.

Sometimes the assignments are exciting and dramatic. I recall well the days when Marshall Plan aid was reaching the shores of Europe. The Communists were determined that none of it be unloaded, although starvation and want were running rampant on the European continent.

There were some in the United States who thought European or even American troops should be used to unload those vessels of aid. We thought differently. We thought that the use of uniformed soldiers would be playing into the hands of the

We believed in the workers of those lands. We believed that, if given the understanding, they would abhor Communism; if given the opportunity, they would reject it. So we helped our fellow trade unionists organize sound unions on the European continent.

The Marshall Plan materials were unloaded despite the Communists and they were unloaded by the civilian workers of those countries.

THE REAL VICTORY, of course, was that the forces of democracy triumphed. The real victory was that strong, democratic, free trade unions were built in those countries. The real victory was that the spread of communism was blocked and reversed.

There is no gainsaying the fact that in every country where there is a strong, free, and democratic trade union movement, then all of the people are free. There a democracy flourishes.

There also is no gainsaying the fact that whenever a trade union movement is weak or destroyed or controlled by the government, then all of the people in the land are captives. There is no freedom. There are no democratic rights. There is only tyranny.

It is to the end that there be complete freedom for all peo-

In Africa and in Asia, in Latin America and in Europe that has been our goal. That is our purpose. That's what we are seekng today.

THAT IS WHY we have formed the American Institute for Free Labor Development in Washington. This independent labor and free industry in the United States, is today training hundreds of South and Central Americans to become the trade union leaders of their lands in the future

In every nation newly emerging from the yoke of colon-ialism, you will find young national leaders dedicated to democracy whose background was the trade union movement and who, some time in their lives were helped in some way by the workers of the United

We have had our disappointments. Algeria was one.

But disappointment to us is not discouragement. We believe that the seeds of freedom which we helped sow in Algeria when that nation was fighting for national independence will some day flourish. Oh, yes, the first growth was trampled by the heavy boots of a new tyranny. But those seeds were deeply planted and they will flourish again-of that I am sure.

And in Brazil, where today we are helping give birth to free unions, we are confident that freedom will once again be fully achieved.

THERE IS ONE overriding principle that guides the AFL-CIO in these efforts It is the firm belief that free-

Open To Challenge

By David Lawrence

Civil Rights Law Poses Political Dilemma

either national party convention undertakes to state flatly that the new civil rights law is completely constitutional, this is one way to invite a lot of criticis m not only from opponents of the measure but leaders. The new statute contains David Lawrence clauses which amount to permissive discrimination, and these sections are certainly going to be challenged on constitutional grounds by Negro organizations.

As a matter of fact, the basic principle that there should be no discrimination and that every citizen is entitled to "equal protection of the laws" is not really fulfilled by the new civil rights act. There are many exceptions and exemptions which plainly ignore the fundamental precepts of "equality."

Thus, for example, discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin is prohibited in motels, hotels or rooming houses with more than five rooms to rent, but discrimination is permissible in buildings with five rooms or less to rent if the proprietor himself happens to live in the rooming

DISCRIMINATION likewise is permitted in any restaurant or lunchroom if a substantial portion of the food which it serves doesn't move in interstate commerce but is actually grown in the same state and if all the customers are local residents.

The new law also permits what is termed "racial imbalance" and specifically says that "desegregation" does not mean "the assignment of students to public schools in order to overcome racial imbalance.

Yet in New York City this very week a petition signed by 42,000 persons - parents and taxpayers - has been presented to the city clerk in an effort to prevent the operation of the board of education's school pairing and student busing plans which are scheduled to take effect in September.

The plans, of course, were devised to help eliminate what is called de facto segregation.

In the case of "equal employment opportunities," the new law states that during the first year there must be no discrimination in hiring in any business which has 100 or more But, it will be asked what happens to the principle of 'equal protection of the laws" for those individuals who are convention.

If the platform committee of discriminated against in companies with less than 100 employes?

IN ANOTHER section of the law there is permissive discrimination in the hiring of employes in any business or enterprise "on or near an Indian reserva-

Here again the challenge may be made on the ground that the doctrine of "equal protection of the laws" does not permit of any such exception.

There has been a good deal of confusion over the question whether the new law is based on the 14th Amendment or on the "commerce clause" of the Constitution. Some people who have not read the new statute very carefully seem to think that reliance on the 14th Amendment has been abandoned and that the "commerce clause" of the Constitution alone is being invoked. Actually, the new law says: "Discrimination or segregation by an establishment is supported by state action within the meaning of this title if such discrimination or segregation is carried on under color of any law, statute, ordinance or regu-

THIS PROVISION is, of course, based on the 14th Amedment, which forbids state action of a discriminatory nature.

In its 1883 decision, the Supreme Court said the 14th Amendment applies only to discrimination by the state itself and not to private individuals.

Only last month, three justices of the Supreme Court specifically stated that the 14th Amendment could not be constitutionally invoked to forbid discrimination in hotels or motels, even though they were licensed by the state to operate. The justices said:

"Businesses owned by private persons do not become agencies of the state because they are licensed: To hold that they do would be completely to negate all our private ownership concepts and practices.'

But the new law - relying nevertheless on the 14th Amendment - specifically says that "state action" is involved and federal authority can be used to intervene when any hotel, restaurant or rooming house discriminates on the basis of "any regulation" required by the state. These same businesses are licensed by the state irrespective of whether they engage in interstate commerce.

The question of constitutional ity is thus open to further arguments by both the proponents and opponents of the new law and it isn't going to be settled by any national political party

Political Cynicism

In the final days before any contest that captures widespread interest, the public is generally overwhelmed by a a mass of information, misinformation, rumors, guesses, predictions, and propaganda by the special interests concerned. This is true of a murder trial, a championship prize fight, a world's series, primaries, conventions, and elections.

It's not strange that a good deal of it finds its way into the media of news and opinion. For these media are created to interest and inform the public. And the public is always interested in what has been unexpected.

The best advice at this moment for Mr. and Mrs. Public is to keep calm, drink plenty of cool water and get eight hours of sleep. Much of what you are hearing is not so, or not important, or is designed to alarm

Bear in mind that the method by which presidential candidates are named was created about 130 years ago. It isn't perfect. No man-made institution is perfect. But it's the best way a nation knows to govern itself in this vital area of decision-making.

THE NATIONAL convention succeeded several other methods of selecting presidential candidates. One was a congressional caucus - called by its critics, King Caucus. Another was selection by state legislatures. And there were others.

The convention is a form of representative government. Delegates are selected by one method or another and then are supposed to vote as they believe best for their party or according to the directives of their constituents.

In the present instance the contest is between Sen. Goldwater and those who are against him. In certain mysterious ways that need not be described here, Gov. Scranton has been selected to challenge the leading contender

Chevrolet dealers sell more cars than anybody Because they sell great cars

Chevrolet has brought a whole new kind of excitement to everyday driving this year. It's a fifty-yardline, ten-rows-up kind of excitement.

And whether you're cushioned in the bucket seat of a luxurious Chevrolet Impala Super Sport or behind the wheel of the surprisingly roomy Chevelle, you'll feel it.

Whether you're gobbling up a hill in a thrifty Chevy II or making tracks on a sandy beach with the rear-engined Corvair, you'll feel it. Whether you're just looking at a Corvette or kicking CHEVROLET up some dust with one, you'll feel it.

Altogether you've got five different kinds of cars and up to 45 different models to choose from. And each one is looking even more attractive as the '64 car-year closes out.

You couldn't pick a better time to build on the model you like either, for behind each one is a list of special Chevrolet options as long as your arm.

So stop in at your Chevrolet dealer's now and see what all the excitement is about. Get behind the wheel of America's most popular car. Or all five wheels. And don't be surprised if you'see your neighbor doing the same thing.

BECAUSE MORE PEOPLE BUY CHEVROLETS, CHEVROLETS MUST BE A BETTER BUY

future spacecraft and equip-plies and test samples.

Robert L. Johnson, Douglas vice president for research and engineering, said the proposed lab would orbit for more than a year more than 200 miles above the earth. It would be the size of a large house trailer and would be launched by a Saturn rocket.

The crew would travel to and from the station in modified two-man Gemini or three-man Apollo spacecraft. The six men would return to earth on a staggered schedule, to be replaced by other astronauts.

Johnson reported the laboratory has two provisions to help overcome long-term exposure to weightlessness and the possible adverse effects.

The entire laboratory can rotate slowly to provide a small degree of artificial gravity, Johnson said. In the center of the lab is an on-board centrifuge which can accommodate two men at a time. The centrifuge can whirl them to as high as nine times the force of gravity on earth to simulate re-entry forces, he said.

Space medical experts feel that a form of artificial gravity will be essential for astronauts making trips of a year or more

Pirates Rip Cincy, 9-1; Cubs Gain Split With Giants

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer

At their current pace, the Chicago Cubs will win only 74 games but may wind up with three 20-game winners.

Bob Buhl became the third member of the Cubs' staff to reach the 10-victory plateau at the halfway mark of the season when he shut out San Francisco 2-0 on four hits Wednesday before the Giants took the second game of the doubleheader 7-2. Bringing his record to 10-4 with his third shutout, Buhl joined teammates Larry Jackson, 11-5, and Dick Ellsworth, 10-8, as possible 20-game winners and gave the Cubs a shot at duplicating a feat that hasn't been accomplished in the National League in 41 years.

Not since the 1923 Cincinnati Reds has a NL team had a trio of 20-game winners. Adolfo

Luque won 27, Pete Donohue 21 and Eppa Rixey 20 on that club. The last American League club to do it was Cleveland with Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Herb Score, each winning 20 in 1956. Significantly, neither the Reds nor the Indians won pennants. Both finished second. The Cubs, however, currently are tied for seventh place-with good reason. While Buhl, Jackson and Ellsworth have accounted for 31 victories, the remainder of the staff has put together only six.

Ernie Broglio, the heralded trade acquisition from the St. Louis Cardinals who was supposed to step in as the No. 4 man, hasn't won as a Cub. He lost his fourth straight as Willie Mays powered his 24th homer for the Giants in the nightcap, called after seven innings because of darkness at the lightless Wrigley Field.

The triumph-ending the Giants longest losing streak of the season at four games-kept second-place San Francisco 11/2 games back of the front-running Philadelphia Phillies, who were rained out of a scheduled game with St. Louis.

In the only other game scheduled in either league, home runs by Manny Mota and Willie Stargell triggered Pittsburgh to a 9-1 victory over Cincinnati. Buhl, 10-4, got the only run he

The Giants stormed back in the nightcap, tagging Broglio, 3-9, for five runs and six hits in the first two innings. Mays' homer, with two on in the second, gave him a league-leading 58 runs batted in and proved more than enough support for Ron Herbel, 7-4.

Mota started the scoring for the Pirates with a two-run homer off Jim Maloney in the first and Stargell put it out of reach with a three-run shot in the sixth. Bob Veale, 8-6, and Al McBean held the Reds to four

Junior Editors Quiz on-BUTTERFLIES

QUESTION: How can butterflies protect themselves?

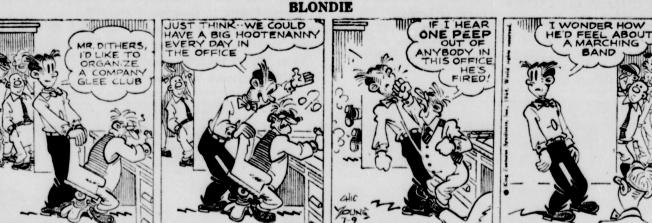

ANSWER: There are several quite remarkable ways by which butterflies and moths can escape from enemies. In the case of the large monarch butterfly, its handsome colors of orange and black can make it conspicuous, but it has a scent gland which secrets a substance unpleasant to its enemies, so they usually leave it alone. The viceroy butterfly, below to right, has almost the same color and pattern, but it does not have the scent gland and so would make acceptable food. But, apparently, animals which might eat it mistake it for the bad-tasting monarch and so leave it

Many animals survive by imitating their surroundings; the two moths shown on a birch trunk are a striking example of this. Notice how similar the chevron-shape of the moths is to the shape of the dark marks left on the birch trunk, where branches once came from. There are butterflies whose under-wing surfaces are amazingly similar to withered leaves. These insects have the habit of lifting their wings when they rest, so the effect is that of a leaf. Caterpillars of butterflies and moths are prized as food, yet many of these escape disaster by feeding at night when birds are not around to grab them up.

FOR YOU TO DO: Color the main white parts of both butterflies' wings a bright red orange and you will get a better idea of this remarkable case of what is called "mimicry." The small outer spots in the black borders of the wings should be left white.

Manolette Crutchfield of Amsterdam, N. Y., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review, and you too may win the weekly prize of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia.
